Vietnam Vocational Training System Recruits 890,646 People in Jan-May

The vocational training system in Vietnam recruited 890,646 people in January-May, or 40% of the full-year target, said Mr. Pham Vu Quoc Binh, deputy director general of the DVET. The figure included 24,192 people in intermediate courses, 24,192 in college courses, and 850,000 in beginner-level courses and others. Mr. Binh noted that the trendy courses this year include tourism, healthcare, logistics, technology, information technology, software innovation, high-tech agriculture, and others. He reminded that in 2022, the target is to recruit 2.086 million people. Mr. Binh admitted that only 16%-17% of secondary school graduates advanced to vocational training in 2021, far below the target of 40% in 2025. He attributed the difficulties to the general education system. At the moment, the Ministry of Education and Training is managing secondary schools and career paths of secondary school graduates. He added that higher education units are lowering their entrance requirements, luring learners away from vocational training. Mr. Binh noted another reason that businesses, particularly foreign-invested enterprises (FIEs), prefer to recruit untrained labourers. Besides, the COVID-19 pandemic wrecked the economy, motivating young labourers to work early, even without training. Moreover, the COVID-19 pandemic halted many career path guiding events across the country. Mr. Binh noted the vocational training system's efforts to fix the issues. The DVET is completing the draft program of vocational training for high school graduates (the scheme is subject to the National Assembly's approval), media promotion of vocational training, autonomy for vocational training schools, and others. Labour Confederation to Improve Vocational Training

The Vietnam General Confederation of Labour (VGCL) strives to improve the quality of vocational training of labour unions. The VGCL now manages 3 vocational colleges, 14 intermediate schools, and 2 centres, featuring 970 staff. In 2019-2021, vocational schools of labour union recruited 238,267 learners and 223,774 graduated from the schools. 80%-85% of graduates are employed with the average monthly incomes of VND5 million-VND7 million. (Lao Dong Jun 22)

Vietnam Must Make Breakthrough Developments in Learning Paths

Vietnam still fails the targets of guiding at least 30% of secondary and high school graduates to advance to vocational training. So far, only Thua Thien-Hue and Dak Nong fulfilled the target of 30% of secondary school graduates advancing to vocational training. Only Can Tho, Thua Thien Hue, Dak Nong, Yen Bai, Dak Lak, Son La, and Nam Dinh fulfilled the target of 40% of high school graduates advancing to vocational training. The proposed solutions are (i) utilizing the inner power of the political system with cooperation among ministries, sectors, and localities, (ii)

updating the learning contents and facilities, (iii) updating policies to facilitate learners to advance to vocational training and beyond, (iv) promoting vocational training to the society. (Tuyen Giao Jun 15)

Vietnam Aims for Annual Agro Growth of 3% by 2030: CPV Resolution

Vietnam has set target to achieve an annual agricultural growth of 3% by 2030, according to Resolution 19-NQ/TW of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee (CPVCC)'s fifth plenum, signed by CPVCC General Secretary Nguyen Phu Trong. Resolution 19 also aims for an annual expansion of 5.5%-6% in agro labour productivity and an agro industry-services growth of 10%. DVET Launches Startup Kite 2022

On June 24, the DVET launched the Startup Kite 2022, a program of startup for TVET learners. Startup Kite 2022 is taking place on May-November. The final is scheduled in November. The past two editions featured 2,818 projects, of which 105 entered the final stage and 73 were rewarded. (Tuoi Tre, Thanh Nien Jun 24)

Vietnam, Germany Have Large Room to Reinforce Economic Ties

Vietnam and Germany have enormous potential to build up bilateral cooperation, especially in economics, said Vietnamese Ambassador to Germany Vu Quang Minh and Parliamentarian Andreas Scheuer, president of the Asian Bridge Initiative program. During a meeting on June 22 in Berlin, the two sides discussed prospects of relations between Vietnam and the EU and Germany. They consented to step up the exchange of all-level missions, including business delegations. The German expressed his willingness to promote a labour cooperation framework and considers Vietnam an important partner in the Young Leaders program, which is about to be launched by the Asian bridge initiative. Training Course on ‘Training Management Skills for In-Company Coordinators’ Made Digitally Accessible

From June 22 to 24, the Programme Reform of TVET in Viet Nam (TVET Programme) and the Directorate of Vocational Education and Training (DVET) successfully co-organised the online master trainer training on “Training management skills for in-company coordinators”. Participants of the training are 28 representatives from 11 TVET Programme’s supported colleges and their partner enterprises. The management skills training programme for in-company coordinators was promulgated by DVET in July 2022, according to the Decision No. 766/QĐ-TCGDNN. To make the training programme’s material more accessible especially during the COVID-19 pandemic period, the TVET programme has worked on digitalising it with presentations, videos, digital reading material, discussion exercises and tests during and at the end of the course. The master trainer training aims to transfer these developed digital training programme and help learners 1) Use and operate digital training material on learning management systems (LMS); 2) Understand all the contents covered by Decision No. 766 and 3) Implement replication training in blended format which combines virtual and in-person training. Mr. Dao Trong Do, Director of the Continuing Training Department, DVET said: “In the period of 2021-2025, we will promote training of in-company coordinators to engage enterprises in vocational education and training, allowing them to become the main pillar in training their own staff as well as in cooperation activities with TVET institutions. Therefore, the digitalisation of the training course is very important”. Upon completing the training course, learners are expected to become master trainers who cooperate with DVET to implement the replication training throughout the country, helping more businesses in organising in-company coordinators training which meet the demand of VET development and enterprises’ human resource development. “In-company coordinators play an essential role in further supporting capacity enhancement, identifying and coordinating appropriate training programs for enterprises’ staff, to meet the requirements of Industry Revolution 4.0 and digital transformation”, said Ms. Afsana Rezaie, Deputy Director, TVET Programme. After the training course, based on the opinions and evaluation of learners, the training contents will be revised and improved to better match with practical requirements. (TVET Jun 27)

Stakeholder Workshop under Programme Partnership Approaches for Development-oriented Vocational Training and Labour Migration (PAM) in Vietnam

The Programme Partnership Approaches for Development-oriented Vocational Training and Labour Migration (PAM) in Vietnam has shown a great cooperation between German and Vietnamese governments in the field of labour migration combined with vocational training. PAM’s approach is new and creates benefits for all stakeholders. Especially, PAM gets partners’ involvement including enterprises in Germany and Vietnam. Thanks to that, it will contribute remarkably to the strong support to PAM’s graduates to be able enter officially in labour markets of these two countries’ stated Mr Pham Vu Quoc Binh, Deputy Director General of DVET/MoLISA. On June 17, in HCMC, DVET in collaboration with The Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) held a PAM’s stakeholder workshop. The workshop attracted the participants from DVET (Formal Training Department, DVET’ Office) Vietnam Chamber of Commerce and Industry (VCCI) in HCMC, Ho Chi Minh City Mechanical and Electrical Enterprise Association (Hamee), Ishisei Viet Nam Co. LTD in Vietnam, Lilama 2 and GIZ. By detailed presentation on PAM’s activities and its achieved milestones, the workshop focused on in-depth discussion about additional and tentative activities, new topics and ideas and the roles of each partner and agreed on planned activities in 2022-2023. This helped to strengthen partners’ common understanding and agreement with targets and next steps carried out in PAM’s implementation. Expressing the expectation to PAM, Mr Pham Vu Quoc Binh, Deputy Director of DVET/MOLISA shared ‘the model of PAM hopes to be thriving and extendable in Viet Nam to other occupations and colleges in the future’. Wages of Labourers in Vietnam with Basic Training Higher Than College Learners

Vietnam is facing a paradox that the wages of labourers with beginner-level training is higher than those with college training, said Ms. Alsana Rezaie, a staff from the Vietnam-Germany Cooperation Program “Reform of TVET in Vietnam.” In particular, in 2019, the average monthly wages of labourers with beginner-level training were VND7.8 million ($335), without training VND6.9 million, and with college-level training VND7.2 million. This is a problem that labourers with only up to a year of training can earn more than workers with up to three years of training. This would demotivate workers from joining vocational training and improving their skills. Ms. Alsana Rezaie added that among two million new vocational training learners annually, only 10% enroll in colleges, 14.2% join intermediate schools, and 75.8% participate in basic courses. She attributed the issue to the Vietnamese labour market’s high demand for basic jobs without high skills. Another reason is employers’ willingness to recruit labourers without certificates. Mr. Phi Manh Thang, a staff from the DVET, said the MoLISA is drafting a list of jobs, in which labourers must provide certificates. (Dan Tri Jun 21)

Germany Willing to Help Vietnam Build Health Centre to Respond to New Diseases

Germany is disposed to assist Vietnam to develop health centres in charge of international coordination to brace for the possible outbreak of new diseases, said Mr. Jochen Flasbarth, State Secretary in the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ). The BMZ leader made his statement while receiving Vietnamese Ambassador to Germany Vu Quang Minh on June 22. He recommended the two countries boost cooperation in the coming time to steel themselves to prevent and control future epidemics, besides in potential fields such as education and training, vocational training, and labour. University Graduates in Vietnam Expect Starting Salaries at VND8.4M: Survey

University graduates in Vietnam expect their starting salaries at VND8.4 million ($360.5) per month at the minimum, according to a survey of Anphabe. The survey collected opinions of 13,700 students from 120 universities across Vietnam. The respondents are Gen Z people (people born between 1997 and 2012). This generation is expected to represent one-fourth of the workforce in 2025. Besides, 88% of outstanding students aims to become executives in two years of their careers. However, a survey of Gen Z labourers showed that their monthly salaries are between VND4 million and VND8 million. Nevertheless, not many Gen Z people fulfil their targets, mostly due to their tendency of quick resolutions and outcomes, while employers seek employees with long-term commitments. About 95% of Gen Z labourers seek to work their first jobs for at least one year, but only 38% can fulfil that. The report also showed that Gen Z people are likely to make career decision themselves, prioritize their personal choices and interests, and

Labour Shortages Ravage Many Industries in Vietnam

While being on the mend post-COVID-19, quite a few sectors in Vietnam are reeling from severe staffing shortages although higher pays are available. Speaking at a conference held by the Ministry of Planning and Investment on June 27 in Hanoi, Chairman of the Vietnam Association of Construction Contractors (VACC) Nguyen Quoc Hiep said many construction firms are contending with recruitment though wages are offered 20%-30% higher than pre-pandemic level. A host of construction workers impacted by COVID-19 have switched their jobs, he added. Similarly, some industries that have a high demand for skilled employees such as electronics, processing, and manufacturing fields, seem less attractive to workers in spite of high pay offers, said Representative for the Vietnam Industry Supporting Alliance Pham Thi Tinh. The insiders recommended promoting vocational training to ensure labour supply while the Ministry of Labour, War Invalids, and Social Affairs and the Ministry of Education and Training should shake hands to enhance training quality. A recent survey in Vietnam showed that 70% of respondents do not recognize virtual sexual actions (activities via email, texts; sex jokes; erotic comments; and others) as sexual harassments at work, while 90% recognize physical actions as sexual harassments (touch, hug, kiss without consent). The survey was conducted by a fund managed by the Aus4Skills program and announced on June 21. Besides, the survey showed that the ratio of sexual harassment victims is varied between 7% for factory workers, and highest at 53% for labour union staff and 50% for staff under State payroll. Regarding victims' responses, only 20.2% asked harassers to stop, 1.5% shared stories with families and relatives, 11% reported to the authorities, while the rest stayed in silence and tried to avoid the wrongdoers. Most victims noted that the handling of such issues, for most of the time, do not lead to any positive outcomes and may escalate the problems. (Phu Nu Viet Nam Jun 21)
